Professional Services Offered

Conjoint marital therapy; individual therapy; conjoint family therapy; group therapy (for couples, singles, and for women seeking personal growth); parent education with emphasis on the development of self-esteem in children; workshops for couples, parents, and singles; training and supervision of licensed psychotherapists in Imago Relationship Therapy; consultation to other professionals and community leaders regarding problems in human behavior.

Present Specialties

1. Marriage therapy: Since 1989, I have studied extensively under Harville Hendrix, Ph.D. in New York who founded the Institute for Imago Relationship Therapy and innovated the theory of relationships called Imago Relationship Therapy. My husband, Bruce Crapuchettes, Ph.D., also a licensed psychologist practices with me and we put on weekend workshops for couples regularly in the US and internationally. We also train licensed psychotherapists in Imago Relationship Therapy.

2. Parenting: I have written a parenting book, "Raising Cooperative And Self-Confident Children," and have put out a set of two audio tapes with the same title. Also, I have designed and conduct a one-day workshop for parents and educators. I see parents as clients and conduct speaking engagements on the topic.

Theoretical Orientation

My orientation is "Imago Relationship Therapy." Harville Hendrix, Ph.D., of the International Imago Institute innovated the theory and practice of Imago Relationship Therapy. It is a unique blend of Psychodynamic, Gestalt, and Cognitive/Behavioral Therapy that sees the committed, intimate relationship as the place of healing for childhood wounds.
